September 13 - Oct. 6

The Premiere of

By
Sheila Cowley

"Stay" is a psychological drama about a marriage on the brink whose pulse refuses to abate. It is the story of darkly, complicated relationships and the nature of trust, love, sacrifice, and ultimately letting go. And yet these are real people: we've known them; we've been them. Stay is a brand new play. (August of 2012).

Dine at Kate's Place on any Wednesday in Sept. and benefit the Players.

Head for Kate's Place in September, where the Wimberley Players will be the recipient of 10 percent of every patron's meal on Wednesdays. Make it a brunch, a lunch, a dinner, or a meeting with a meal. It's not just your table that counts, but everyone who is dining there, whether or not they are associated with the Players! Thank you, Kate, for your generous support.

Playwright Cowley very happy with the first full "Stay" production

Sheila Cowley (far right), author of "Stay," was delighted with the Players' rendition of her play. She visited the theater Saturday night, Sept. 14, and chatted with playgoers Bob Katz, Paul

Wright and Marilyn Wright. She also spoke to the audience and the cast during a TalkBack after the show.
